Introduction & objectives

The FIFA Football Agent exam is not merely an administrative formality; it is a rigorous test of technical competence designed to filter access to an increasingly professionalised industry.

With study materials exceeding 1,000 pages of complex legal regulations – including the Regulations on the Status and Transfer of Players (RSTP), the Football Agent Regulations (FFAR), and the FIFA Statutes – candidates face a volume of information that is overwhelming without the proper methodology.

Sports Law Hub presents an intensive programme designed upon a fundamental premise: rote memorisation without legal understanding is insufficient. Within a condensed timeframe, our approach focuses on strategic synthesis and practical application. Through the analysis of recent case law, Football Tribunal jurisprudence, and technical simulations, we decode the regulations to transform theory into real-world problem-solving tools.

We do not simply prepare students to select the correct answer; we prepare them to think with the logic of the regulator.

Under the vision of a prestigious academic director

The course is led by one of the most authoritative figures in international football governance. Barry Lysaght brings a unique "insider" perspective from the regulator, having held legal leadership positions within some of the football ecosystem's most relevant institutions:

- Former Legal Counsel & Group Lead at FIFA
- Former Head of Sports Legal at the AFC (Asian Football Confederation)
- Former General Counsel of the Saudi Arabian Football Federation (SAFF)

As both a senior sports lawyer and licensed FIFA Football Agent, Barry combines the technical rigour of a legal professional who has drafted key regulations with the pragmatic insight of an active market operator. His leadership ensures that the course content is forensic in its focus, comprehensive in its scope and strategically relevant for both the Exam and professional practice.

Faculty

The faculty has been selected based on criteria of technical excellence and direct operational experience. Our lecturers include leading sports lawyers and senior consultants who combine both legal expertise and practical know-how gained from years of elite-level practice in the field.

- Regulatory specialisation: professionals who have worked inside FIFA's legal architecture, implementing FIFA regulations governing key areas such as transfers, player contracts, financial transparency and dispute resolution.
- Strategic approach: experts operating at the cutting edge of the field, capable of identifying the exam's 'conceptual traps' and explaining the exceptions and nuances that define current legal practice.
- Pedagogical commitment: fully aware of the challenge posed by the exam, each session is designed to maximize the retention of key concepts, dissecting complex regulations into digestible and direct principles.

Here are some of the confirmed lecturers.

Methodology & exam strategy

Unlike conventional academic evaluations, our methodology transcends theory to foster genuine operational competence. The programme's focus is centred on the rigorous mastery of substantive regulations, empowering students to navigate the 1,000+ pages of FIFA rules with agility. By deconstructing the regulator's logic and analysing complex scenarios through practical legal synthesis, we prepare candidates to filter through "regulatory noise" and apply precise solutions under pressure. Consequently, the technical expertise acquired becomes the ultimate strategic tool to successfully navigate the demands and nuances of the official exam.

Exclusive study resources

Beyond the official FIFA bibliography, participants will benefit from resources and insights developed by our academic direction to optimize the study process:

Regulatory synthesis

Comprehensive breakdowns of the FFAR, RSTP and other key regulations, highlighting key definitions, procedures and authorities.

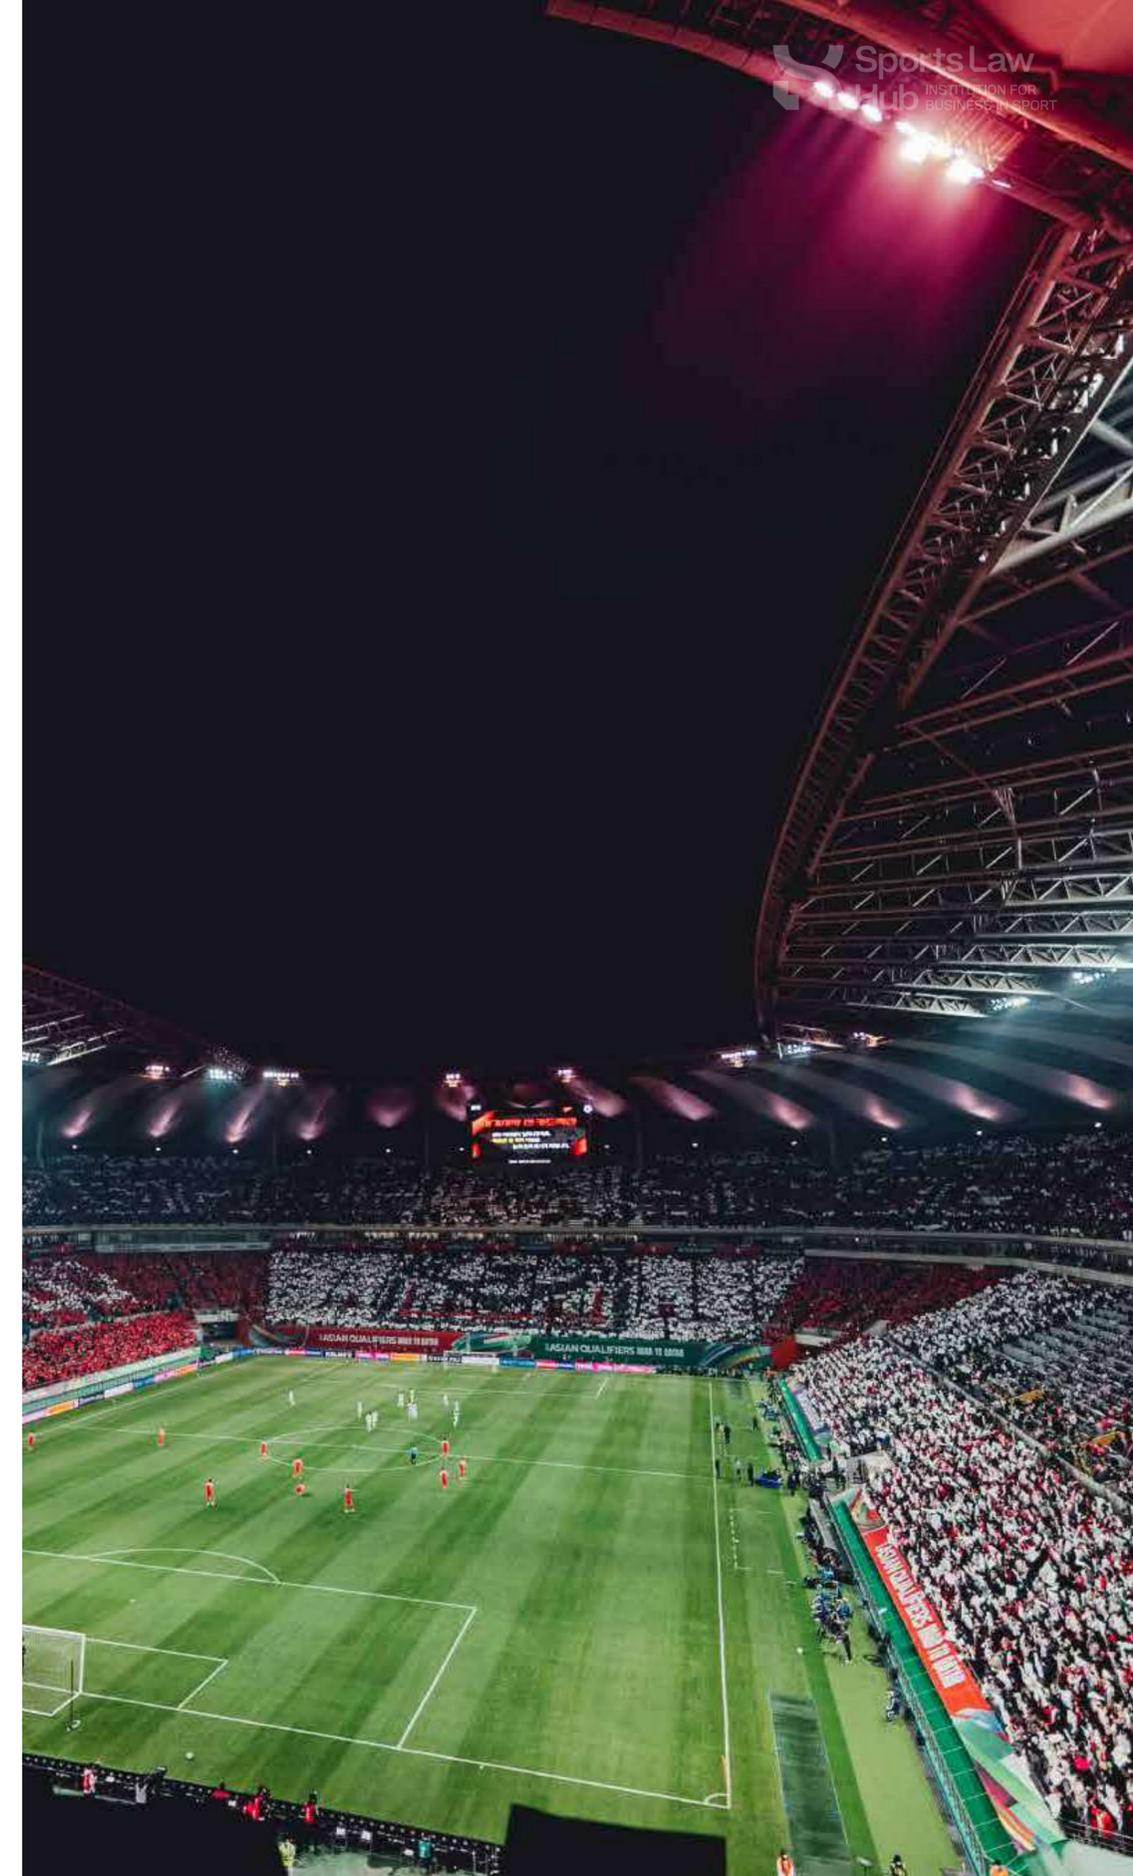

Case law analysis

A targeted review of key FIFA and CAS decisions, selected specifically for their relevance to practical exam scenarios.

Virtual Campus Access

Full availability of high-definition session recordings for review and analysis until the official exam date.

Furthermore, participants will join the SLH Alumni Network, connecting with an international community of lawyers, agents, and club executives. This ecosystem fosters cross-border collaboration and the exchange of professional opportunities in a globalised market.
