

PROTECT YOUR LEGACY.

360° Athlete Guide.
Contracts, conduct,
and career management

From September 22 to October 13, 2026

Introduction

In today's world of sports, success is not only about how you perform on the field. Your career also involves legal, financial, and personal decisions that affect your future.

From signing contracts to handling image rights and taxes, you must make important choices that can have long-term consequences. Not understanding the rules off the field can put your career and earnings at risk.

This programme is designed to help you understand your rights and protect your future.

Talent leads you to victory. Knowledge protects you.

90% of your future earnings
depend on decisions made off the pitch.

Your reputation and integrity last longer than your career. Understanding your rights helps protect both.

Objectives

The 360° Athlete Guide programme gives you a clear overview of the most important legal and career aspects that affect your life as a professional athlete.

The programme helps you know your rights, spot risks in contracts and reputation, and feel confident when talking with clubs, brands, or advisors.

Our goal is to help you take control and make informed decisions about your own career.

By the end of this programme, you will know how to:

Understand your contracts

Learn how to spot unfair clauses, hidden risks, and warning signs in player and agent contracts before you sign.

Follow the rules & avoid serious risks

Understand anti-doping and integrity rules (such as match-fixing) so you don't break them by mistake and risk bans or suspensions.

Protect your image and reputation

Learn how to handle public image problems and get the most value from sponsorship and brand deals.

Manage money and taxes wisely

Understand the basics of international taxes and wealth management so you can protect your income and plan for life after your sports career.

Academic Direction

Guided by the vision of International Sports Law expert Stefano Malvestio, this programme is built on real-world results.

His practical insight has helped shape a course that goes beyond theory and focuses on real-world challenges faced by professional athletes.

Under Stefano's guidance, the course reflects current industry standards and addresses the real needs of today's professional athletes.

Stefano Malvestio

Academic Director

Attorney-at-law,

Founding Partner at Malvestio Sports

Stefano acts mainly for international clients, as his practice focuses on dispute resolution before the bodies of FIFA as well as arbitration before the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS), having particular expertise in agency, transfers, doping and employment-related disputes. He also advises on a broad range of sports legal issues, such as negotiation and drafting of contracts related to international transfer of players, players' agency, economic rights and image rights.

Besides having provided legal advice in some of the most important football transactions in recent years, Stefano also represented high-level athletes in sports such as tennis, fencing, and race-walking. Experienced in dealing with the relevant procedures and regulations of CONMEBOL, UEFA and the AFC, Stefano also contributed to the drafting of regulations of different nature for national Football Associations as well as national state laws.

Faculty

Experts who work with Top Athletes.

What makes this programme special is the experience of the people who teach it. All speakers are active legal advisors to elite, international athletes.

They work directly with players to protect their interests, manage complex contracts, handle major sponsorship deals, and resolve disputes with clubs and sports authorities. This includes high-value endorsements, tax planning across countries, and important contract negotiations.

Since they work in the field every day, they bring real examples and practical advice into the classroom. This means you learn from real situations faced by top athletes – not just from theory.

Who is this course for?

Designed for those requiring a clear, direct command of the industry:

Professional Athletes. Active players who want to take control of their careers off the field and protect their long-term interests.

Player Care & Agents. Professionals supporting athletes who want to boost their value by mastering legal and reputational risk management.

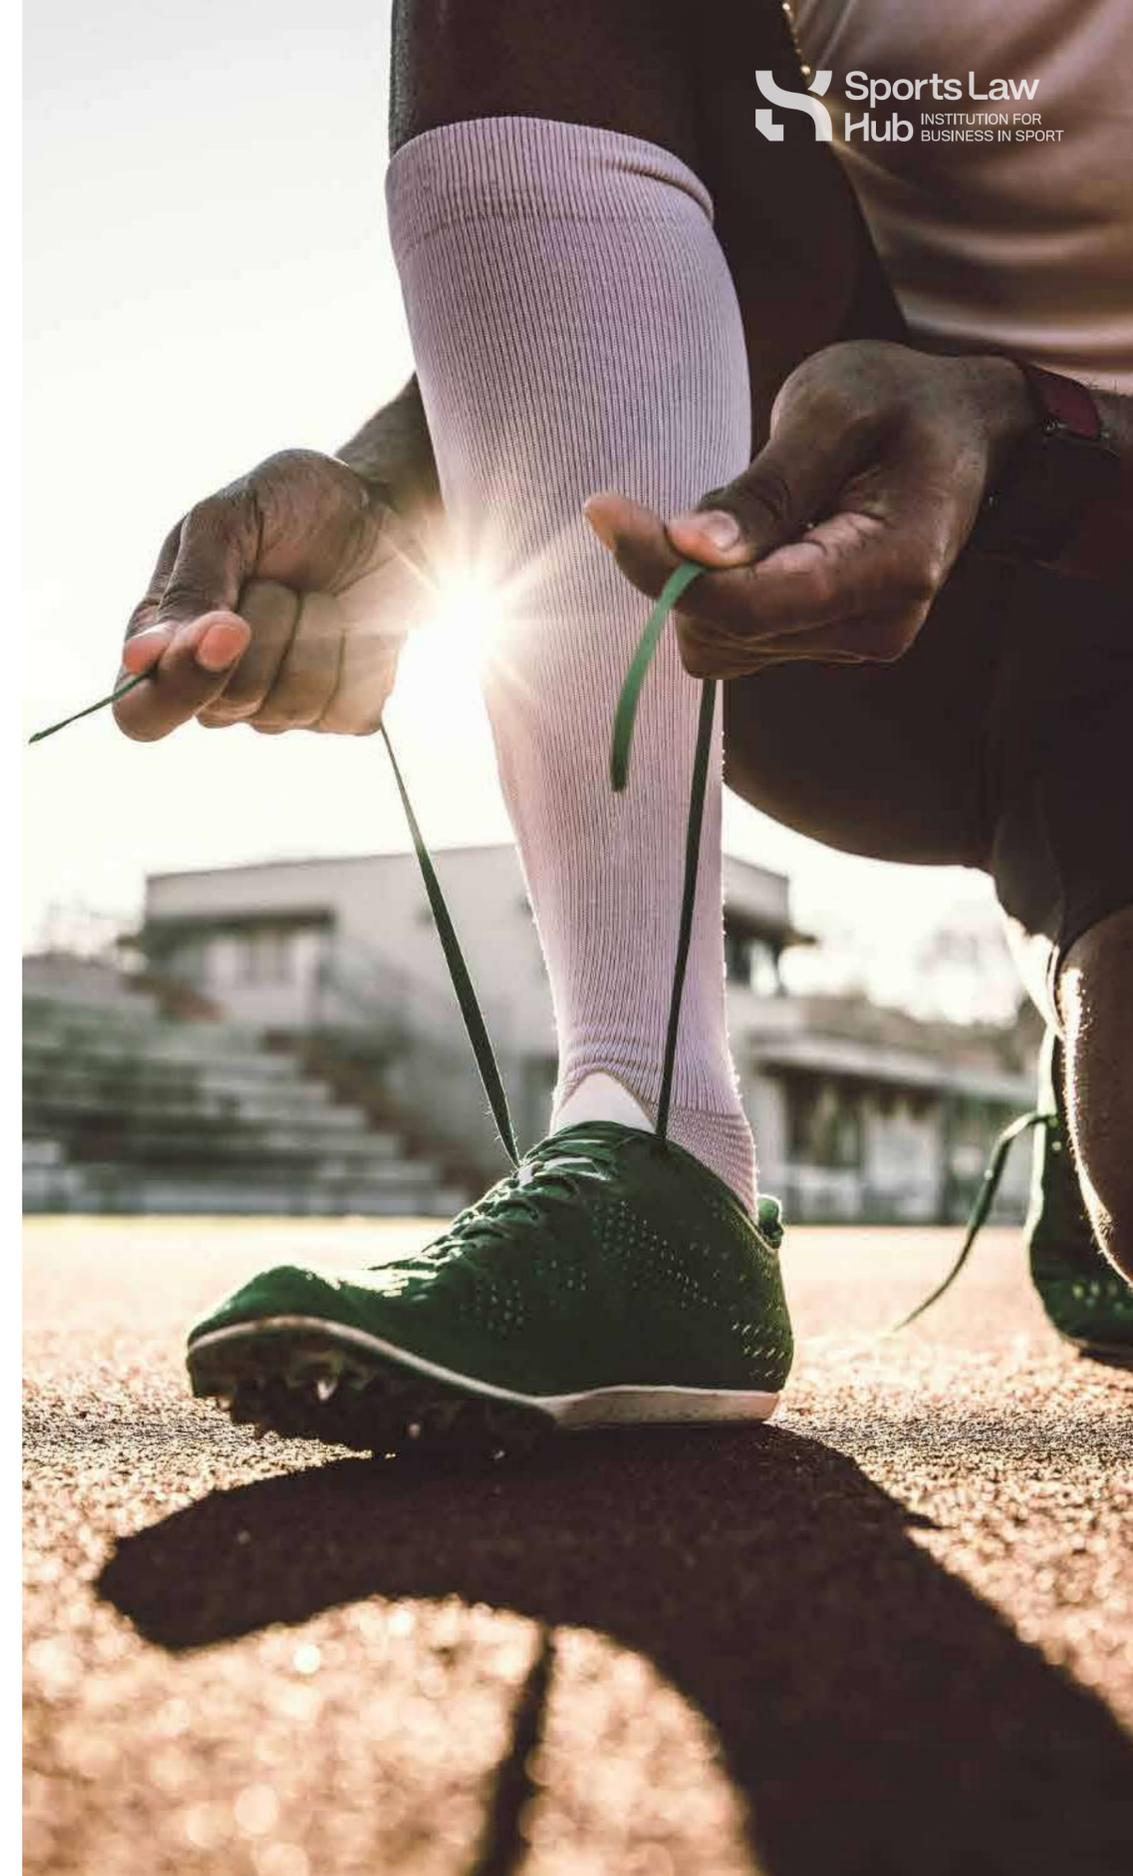

Family & Personal Advisors. Parents, family members, or trusted advisors who handle day-to-day operations and act as the athlete's first line of support.

Methodology

The programme is delivered live online, designed to fit easily around your training and competition schedule.

It's 100% practical - we focus on what really matters: real-life case studies, contract reviews, and current market scenarios.

You will have direct access to the faculty, so you can get answers to your questions and tackle the specific challenges you face in your career.
